About the programme

Recent history has shown the role young people can play in initiating change and translating international issues into local community activities. Of these key issues that continue to shape our relations and societies at large is that of coexistence and religious harmony.

A Common Word Among the Youth was born out of the 2007 Common Word initiative but extends the approach to all religions with the youth leading and driving the project.

This will be an all-expenses paid programme which includes several training courses, international conferences, civic activities and a TV documentary to share the good work with the international community.

The programme starts in July 2015 with the first youth camp in Morocco and concludes in June 2016 with an awards conference in Washington DC.
