

Shining a Light ON Death

Follow up Program

Creating a Sacred Space...

Shining a light on death is like shining a light on life: creating a sacred space for both

Being with someone who is dying

Cheryl Maddock

Cheryl has been working with and supporting people for many years as a shaman and has trained with Hospice Volunteers to support those in palliative care. She is a qualified Reflexologist and through this medium has offered her services to those in need, recognising that touch is a great comforter. Being a spiritual person with strong beliefs, she holds sacred space to allow the process of choice for the dying person.

Talking with a bereaved person

Maxine Barry

Maxine has been the Hobart Facilitator of The Compassionate Friends, a world-wide organisation composed of bereaved parents and family members. The loss of her daughter transformed her life. Maxine belongs to The Religious Society of Friends (Quakers).
